What's New in the?

Desktop Teleporter is a tool that helps you keep your desktop clean. It provides you with a single location for all your files and folders that you want to keep on your desktop. You can move them to this folder using the application's own drag and drop system. Exceptions – Some files and folders are not to be moved. Hold – The application will perform a hold on a file or folder, before trying to move it. Renamed – If the application detects that a file or folder is renamed to another name, it will attempt to perform a move. Delay – You can specify a delay for the application to perform the move. Movable – The application is able to move files and folders when they are in use. Notepad – The notes you save in the application can be saved to text files using the built in Notepad. Auto Start – Desktop Teleporter can automatically start at Windows startup. Settings – You can change the behavior of the application and save your settings. Screenshot: My opinion I've been using the application since I was introduced to it, and to be honest, I'd rather use it than keep track of a checklist, as is usually the case. The application is fast, fast and stable. You don't have to feel like you are removing things from your desktop manually, instead you can just move things on to the folder which takes care of it. I don't have any suggestions, as it really is a very good application. There is not much I could say about it that hasn't been said before. Would I recommend it? Of course, if you are looking for a practical solution to clean your desktop. You might consider this option for certain, but otherwise just see what you think and if it makes you feel more comfortable, then it's a great tool. What I'd really like to see is some kind of hotkey support. P.S. I have a Google Code project where the source code can be found and the compiled setup for Windows can be found here.
