Generates and displays weather forecasts on a daily basis, not only for a single location, but for a whole country or region. Work with local, national and global weather, with weather precipitation forecasts for the previous hour, 24 hours, 48 hours, a week or a month. You can also configure up to 60 locations for which weather reports are generated. Get detailed weather information about your default location, with the following data: - weather tables showing wind speed and direction, temperature and humidity, cloud cover, visibility and precipitation probability Support of the following units of measurement: - Fahrenheit (default) - Celsius Present weather parameters in the location you have selected, such as current temperature, dew point, thunderstorm watch, and more. The application's main window will display a map with the current conditions in your location. The map is based on wind direction (from left to right) in addition to wind speed: slow/light winds in blue, moderate winds in yellow, strong winds in orange and very strong winds in red. For each of the locations, also included is: - forecast for the next hour (with a weather table as well), - forecast for the next 24 hours, - forecast for the next 48 hours, - current conditions for the default location, - alert times for the coming three hours, - alert for the next three days, - alert for the coming weekend. You can also configure up to 60 locations, so you can also get the weather reports from each of them. The application's settings are accessed through the Settings page: you can change weather units to Fahrenheit or Celsius, select sound effects, enable or disable the weather animation and configure whether tooltips or not will be shown. You can also configure your default location as well as run the application automatically when Windows starts up.
