We're developing a series of videos that highlight our top picks for best free applications on each platform. This week, we're talking about best Windows apps. Windows, like Android and iOS, has lots of programs that can be used to complete everyday tasks. Stick around as we discuss the best free Windows apps and how we selected them. The Best Windows Apps Windows 10 USB 3.0 to Gigabit Ethernet Adapter The Microsoft USB 3.0 to Gigabit Ethernet Adapter is a very straightforward and inexpensive way to allow your computer to connect to a network. The device works with most Windows operating systems. It's completely plug-and-play and there's even a free driver that's available on Microsoft's site. The device is fast, too, and allows up to 10 Gbps transfers. It's inexpensive, too. The adapter is available for $10 and the drivers are free. In the first month, you'll pay $5. Best of all, you're sure to never lose an internet connection while you're out and about. Gigchartz Free Windows Calculator The free version of the Gigchartz calculator software offers a full degree of accuracy. It's also very easy on the eyes, and offers many great features to help you find, extract, and format data. Of course, if you prefer a more traditional Windows calculator, you can download that, too. PyWin32 Free Programming Platform If you're more interested in programming than just data extraction, PyWin32 is a free application that can be used to create programs that work for any Windows operating system. The platform includes utilities for developing PyQt, PyWin32, Matplotlib, Tkinter, and many others. What's more, it can be used in Python

TypeAccent Free (Latest)

TypeAccent is an accent character chooser for Microsoft Windows that allows you to switch between different keyboard languages, including American English and British English. TypeAccent allows you to type the accent character with Fn+F2 and use your standard English layout as well. It works with Windows 2000, Windows XP, Windows Vista, Windows 7, Windows 8 and Windows 10. It works with all versions of Microsoft Office. TypeAccent is a free download, and it's available in both 32-bit and 64-bit versions. F2 button is default... TypeAccent works great with Microsoft Office. In Word 2010, the T2, T3, T4, T5, and T7 keys work with accents. Then in Word 2007, the numbers 1, 2, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9 will open the Character Map, and the 2, 5, 6, 8, and 9 work. Additionally, if you're in MS 2013 and want to choose, say, an accented character for "é" you do it with either Alt+Shift or the F2 button (like on phone) or the Numlock key option. TypeAccent 5 out of 5 Michael Brunet Very, very handy I think it's the best Windows accent character app ever. Very easy to use, it even works for Dutch Windows. (I think you have to use the Microsoft Dutch option, though I haven't tried it myself) There were a couple of issues, but nothing serious. TypeAccent 5 out of 5 Crissy TypeAccent 5 out of 5 Hector Siau Great way to use the accent characters This is an amazing tool. I use it to type accented characters with an Italian keyboard. It can be moved to a panel and kept open and fully visible in the task bar. It is perfectly responsive and works with all keyboards. Try it! TypeAccent 5 out of 5 zimzum TypeAccent 5 out of 5 Jack TypeAccent 5 out of 5 Vincent Kramer One of the best keyboard interface app I've ever used on a Windows box. It's a very simple and intuitive app that I found very handy at work, and especially in the past. It is a must have app for anyone working with foreign language keyboard layout.
